Did you Know...

“Children are a laboratory for the senses with each sense activating other senses... As a result, the child’s environment cannot be seen just as a context for learning or a passive setting for activities; it is an integral part of learning and helps define their identity” (Zini, as cited in Edwards, Gandini & Forman, 2012, p. 319)

Ideas for you to do at home

Hang a variety of wind chimes on a nearby tree for the children to listen to when they are playing outside. Make one by stringing small seashells on a fishing line and threading the ends through a wicker trivet.
